

Laura McGortey is passionate about the future of open banking and digital payments. Previously with BNY Mellon, and now with Capgemini's payments practice, Laura has developed and managed payment and banking products and solutions utilized by corporations in the US and financial institutions globally. Laura is an avid student of the global modernization of payments and the digital revolution.